1. Construction of fortifications along the old Yugoslav-Italian border near the Morgan Line has been given up. Fortifications are now being built along a new line, along the Slovenian-Croatian border, especially in the region of Gorjanci. This means that in case of conflict, Slovenia would not be defended. Whether this situation will affect present work on railways in Slovenia and the new or expanded airfields at Krsko and Sokopolje (sic) (probably Skopice) is not known.
